The Jerome Lohez Foundation was launched in November 2005 in honor of Jérôme Robert Lohez, a French citizen who passed away in the North tower of the World Trade Center on Sept. 11th, 2001. The foundation's mission is to foster French and American unity and cultural understanding, by supporting scientific and technological exchanges in higher education, in honor of those diverse citizens who perished in the 2001 attacks in New York.

As part of the transatlantic academic joint-venture between EPITA and Stevens Institute of Technology, the Jérôme Lohez Foundation has for more than a decade made scholarship opportunities available to French and American students studying in the EPITA International Master's Program within the field of Computer Science Engineering.

The Jérôme Lohez September 11th Scholarship applicants will be screened by the foundation's executive board of internationally qualified professionals and academics.

The deadline for applications will be October 15, 2019. The board will meet to review submissions in the late October and scholarship winners shall be announced in early November 2019 via the Lohez Foundation Website and also on its Facebook page.

Guidelines
• The foundation may provide scholarships to:
• One student from EPITA pursuing a year of study in the dual-degree Master of Science Program in Information Systems Management at Stevens Institute of Technology in the USA.
• One student from Stevens pursuing a year of study in the International Master's Program within the field of Computer Science Engineering at EPITA in France.
• The award ranges from $2,000 to $3,000, to be determined by the board of directors.
• All students who participate in a dual-degree program are eligible to apply to the scholarship program, regardless of nationality.

For French applicants wishing to study in the United States
Applicants must submit two essays
• Ideals of religious and cultural tolerance, entrepreneurship, egalitarianism and a spirit of generosity are the essence of the United States. Do any of these ideals inspire you to study in America and in what way?
• During your international study experience, how will you encourage opposition to global, violence-based ideologies?

For American applicants wishing to study in France
Applicants must submit two essays:

- What inspires you to spend some time in France to study?
- During your international study experience, how will you encourage opposition to global, violence-based ideologies?

Other application materials:
- Cover Letter must be included.
- Along with their essays, applicants from both countries must submit three letters of recommendation: one academic reference, preferably by a professor who taught the applicant; one from an employer, preferably by a direct supervisor of the applicant; and one from a close associate who can describe the applicant's personal character. All letters of recommendation must include the contact information of those who recommend the applicant.
- A Basic Information Sheet is downloadable in PDF from the application site; and once completed, it must be uploaded at the appropriate place on the application site.
- Academic records are mandated. Applicants must submit their transcripts from all colleges that they attended. Transcripts must carry an official seal, and applicants shall direct registrar offices to send transcripts to our foundation.

The time-stamp deadline for submission of all materials is October 15, 2019. Late applications will not be considered.
